Under T4 policy, a doctor had to perform the actual killing, in accordance with the motto enunciated by Viktor Brack, head of the Chancellery's Department II, which had responsibility for the T4 program: 'The syringe belongs in the hand of a physician. She had her head down and was attempting to shake off her pursuers.

The killing was usually arranged by the institution's director or by a doctor. And he knew about Marie. I could wish to understand my relationship to other people, right?
